The P.E. Gang - We've Got Winning Character, We've Got Game!

Hello! My name is A.J. and my favorite sport is baseball. I'm ten years old and a member of the P.E. Gang. P.E. stands for physical education (which just so happens to be my favorite class in school!) To be a member of the P.E. Gang, you must follow the P.E. Gang motto which is: "I promise to always play fair, be honest, work cooperatively and encourage others. I will be a good citizen in my community, be helpful to my neighbors and respect my classmates, my teachers, other adults, and most importantly, my parents or guardians."

Would you like to become a member of the P.E. Gang? All you have to do is read the stories and with the help of your teacher, complete the activities after each one. The first story is about how the P.E. Gang was started. My P.E. teacher Mr. Fitter wrote these stories and is always teaching us the importance of showing good character in the gym, in the classroom and at home. He also taught us that caring, respectfulness, fairness, responsibility, trustworthiness and being a good citizen are the six traits that we, as members of the P.E. Gang, must demonstrate in order to show good citizenship.

Hi! My name is Samantha, but all my friends call me Sammie. My favorite sport is volleyball. Our coach, Mr. Fitter, taught us the importance of being a respectful person. He shows us ways to be courteous and polite, to listen to others and to not argue with our teachers, classmates, coaches, teammates, or game officials.

Congratulations on completing the first level of the P.E. Gang! You have hopefully learned about how important it is to show someone you care. Our next story is about respectfulness. In this story, Mr. Fitter assigns us our first job as the newly formed P.E. Gang by asking us to work with a student in our fifth grade class named Patrick. Patrick can often be found fighting, complaining, or arguing with his classmates. His way of "fitting in" is to act goofy in class by being the class clown.

In chapter two, the P.E. Gang help Patrick become a better person. I hope you have fun learning about the importance of showing respect and how great it feels inside!

Hi! My name is Jimmy and I love playing hockey! Both my P.E. teacher, Mr. Fitter and my local team, the Buffalo Sabres have inspired me to do my very best - both on and off the ice. Mr. Fitter taught us how to hold the hockey stick correctly and how to pass and stick handle. He also shows us how to be a fair person by treating us the same as he would like to treated, and always playing by the rules. Mr. Fitter rarely ever keeps score in class because he says that although winning feels great, there is always a team that loses. This way, we focus on the fun of the game, instead of on winning or losing.

Let me be the first to congratulate you on completing the second level! You have learned how important it is to be a respectful person, and more importantly, how to show it. My brother Aaron and I have been playing hockey since we were three years old. To be honest, my brother and I don't always get along when we play against each other. In chapter three, you'll learn what happens when my brother's hockey team challenges the P.E. Gang to play. Let's just say my brother and I learn some important lessons on fairness in this chapter. Well, I have to go practice now. I hope you have fun reading and learning right along with us!

A fair person is careful before making a decision. He or she uncovers all the facts and considers other people's thoughts and feelings first, before making a decision.

Suppose you are playing a game of hockey with friends. You think the puck has passed the goal line, but the other team says it did not. Write a paragraph to tell how this problem could be resolved fairly.

Look alive - pass coming right at you! Hi, my name is Katherine and my favorite sport in the whole entire universe is soccer. I started playing when I was four years old. Mr. Fitter taught us how to dribble, pass, and shoot the soccer ball. He also taught us how to play as a team and why it's so important to be a responsible person. He says when you're playing soccer or any sport, don't make excuses, lose your temper or blame others for making mistakes.

Score! You've now completed the third level and have definitely learned how important it is to be a fair person. In the next story, the P.E. Gang learn about responsibility. Mr. Fitter assigns the pals the job of coming up with their own definition of what "being a good sport" and "being a poor sport" really means. When A.J. and I go to my sister's soccer game, the definition for "responsible" becomes totally clear! So get your shin guards and cleats on and come join us at the game!

We learn much more than just sports education in P.E. class. Mr. Fitter also teaches us how to be trustworthy. He says we need to be honest and do what is right, even when it's difficult.

Touchdown! Your excellent reading and writing skills have earned you some great character, and you have now completed the fourth level. Hopefully, knowing the characteristics of responsibility and applying these behaviors in your everyday life will be just as natural to you as riding a bike.

Our next story is about being honest and trustworthy. Mr. Fitter is helping me to develop these two traits by teaching me how to say the right words when I talk with my parents about my feelings. My parents are great - they come to all of my games and they sign me up for almost any sport I want to play. The only problem is they argue and yell at the officials and my other team members. I get so embarrassed that I don't want to play any more. Mr. Fitter helps me with my parents by showing me how to express my feelings to them in an honest and kind way. Wow - P.E. is so much more than "gym class - it's about making me a better person! Well, good luck to you and have fun reading the next chapter!

Slam dunk! Hi! My name is Matthew, but my friends call me M.J. M.J. is short for Michael Jordan; my all time favorite basketball player! In physical education class, Mr. Fitter taught us how to dribble, pass and shoot the ball. My favorite shot is the lay up because it's so easy to make. Mr. Fitter also taught us the importance of teamwork. He says that good teams work together, encourage each other and cooperate to get the job done.

Congratulations on completing the fifth level; you learned how to be trustworthy. Chapter six is about our basketball team the West Street Gators. Every year we have a great season but we never beat our archrivals the Grizzlies; they are always faster and taller than us. If we want to beat them we have to really pull out the teamwork - big time! Have fun reading chapter six and find out if we will finally ever beat the Grizzlies...
